"POT HOUSE" AT THE PLANT OF AMERICAN BOTTLE COMPANY BURNED EARLY SATURDAY

Origin of Blaze Not Known But May Have Started From Gas---Damage May Amount to $5,000 to $10,000

FLAMES GAINED HEADWAY AS ALARM WAS DELAYED

Patrolman Hurbaugh Notified Fire Department From North Fourth Street Beat Several Blocks From Scene of Blaze---Structure Will be Rebuilt at Once.

Fire of unknown origin almost completely destroyed the "pot-house" of the American Bottle Company's plant at an early hour this morning, causing a loss variously estimated at $5,000 to $10,000. Difficulty in notifying the fire department no doubt had much to do with the extent of the damage as it was fully 25 minutes after the fire was discovered before the fire department arrived.

Officials of the company were unable to state this morning just what the damage would amount to, or how the fire originated. The loss is probably covered by insurance.

It was about 2:30 o'clock when the fire was discovered by Joe Great, an employee on the night shift at the factory. He immediately caused the factory alarm to be sounded and made an effort to get word to the city fire department.

In the mean time the factory fire-fighting facilities were hurriedly put into use and fully 20 minutes before the arrival of the department, the factory firemen were throwing water on the blaze.

The city department received the first notification of the fire from Patrolman Ed Hurbaugh, who was patrolling his beat in North Fourth street, six or seven blocks from the fire. He saw the reflection of the flames in the sky and ran to the Fourth street engine house where he notified the fireman on the dog watch.

Headquarters was notified quickly and soon after the department was on its way, the telephone alarm came in from the residence of William Giffin, superintendent of the plant, who lives on Clinton street.

The fire was burning merrily when the department arrived and the woodwork of the "pot house" and the several additions to the building were a mass of flames.

Soon after the firemen entered the building with their lines of hose, the upper floor of the brick building was carrying with it the immense weight of the great block of fire clay in the course of preparation for the tanks.

Fortunately none of the fire fighters were under the falling debris and no one was hurt. Within a short time after the floors fell the fire was under control and the firemen continued their efforts to finishing up the job.

The "pot-house" is a three-story brick structure where the clay blocks used in lining the glass tanks are manufactured. Great quantities of the partly finished product were stored in the finishing rooms and much of this is totally ruined. That portion of the fire clay blocks in the kilns and in the south end of the pot house was damaged but little.

A large stock of raw material, clay which is imported from Germany, was in the south portion of the building and was unharmed either by fire or water.

Considerable damage was done to the machinery, particularly on the first floor of the pot house, where the upper floors with the burning timbers crashed down upon the machines. In all probability, much of this will have to be replaced when the new building is finished.

New electrical appliances were in the building ready for installation, but these were removed and suffered no damage.

Almost before the fire was extinguished, plans were under way for the reconstruction. According to the present plans the new structure will not be three stories in height.

While the firemen were working on the blaze a resident of the vicinity of Case and Maple avenues told Fire Chief Bausch that he first observed the blaze as he passed the street cor-

H. C. KELLER'S SPEECH BEFORE CONSTITUTIONAL CONVENTION ON INITIATIVE AND REFERENDUM

Believing in the principles of the initiative and referendum, having been an ardent advocate of the same for more than twenty-five years, I submit to you the theory that it behooves the friends in this convention of these principles to submit to the voters of the state a proposition that will combine the best efforts of the friends of the principles involved, whether he be radical or conservative upon said proposition.

If it is a fact beyond dispute that in all legislative matters the laws that have stood the test and have been of the greatest benefit to the governed, have been the product of the conservative mind; and not the product of the radical mind upon either end of the proposed law.

It is a fact that at the election the delegates to this convention who endorsed the initiative and referendum as delegates, in so far as the VOTERS were concerned, upon the percent of 8, 10 and 12, notwithstanding certain statements have been made that those statements meant no higher per cent should be used, but just as much, lower per cents as could be obtained in this convention.

If there is any delegate in this convention who made his canvass before the people of his district upon this version of the statement sent out by the I. and R. leagues of the state and signed by many delegates, it has not come to my knowledge.

If the voters of the state generally believed that the delegate they voted for, last November, if successful, would come to this convention and work and vote for the stated per cents, and if he does not now do so, what do you think many of your constituents will think of you, and what effect will it have at the polls when the people come to ratify your product?

It is a fact that the Ohio Federation of Labor, Convention of the State of Ohio, at Cleveland, assembled in the month of October, 1911, did pass certain resolutions endorsing the initiative and referendum and the per cents of 8, 10 and 12, and sent same to the delegates of this convention, asking them to use their best efforts to combine these percentages as near as possible in said I. and R. proposal.

I now will read you a letter from the Newark Trades Union and Labor Council, representing 7500 members, instructing me to use my influence to have the above stated per cents incorporated in the said I. and R. proposal. They voted unanimously for 8, 10, and 12 per cent.

Gentlemen of the convention, I wish to further state to you that I have spent much time in regard to the finding out of the wishes of my constituency in regard to the important proposals submitted to this convention.

Gentlemen, I wish further to state to you that two of the most prominent workers in the labor unions, of Licking county stated to me that if this proposal now before the house passed without amendment, that they would use every effort in their power to defeat the same at the polls, as they considered it a dangerous proposition, and I say to you further that each of these gentlemen is favorable to and will work for a proposition as advocated by the labor councils of this state, namely, 8, 10 and 12 per cents, or as near as possible to these per cents.

Gentlemen, I do not believe that all the opposition to this proposal among the friends of the I. and R. is confined to Licking county, but that you will find this dissatisfaction existing in every county in the state to a greater or less extent, and I say to you gentlemen who are trying to push this proposal over, can you close your minds, and dare you, in all justice to the cause you represent, take the chance of making enemies of the more conservative friends of this principle?

Gentlemen, I now wish to take up the proposal before the convention and point out some of the objections, as I see them, of which there are many, which I shall not at this time attempt to point out, but call your attention to the most serious objection, as I see it, contained in Section 1-A-A.

MASONS MEET AND DISCUSS PLANS FOR ERECTION OF THE $60,000 MASONIC TEMPLE

So great is the interest taken by the Masons of Newark in the proposed new Masonic temple, to be erected on the corner of Fourth and Church streets, that it seemed as though every Mason in the city was in attendance at the big mass-meeting held in the Masonic lodge rooms Friday night for the purpose of considering the matter. All were most enthusiastic and when Mr. Redding, the architect, explained in detail the plans of the building all expressed their approval.

The building, which is to be a five-story structure, will be one of the handsomest and most up-to-date edifices of the kind in the state. There will be six store rooms on the first floor, on the second floor there will be a large dance and public reception hall, with a mezzanine floor, which can be used for banquets and which will accommodate 132 diners with a capacity of 200. In the front will be office rooms which later will probably be used as club rooms. The third floor will be the lodge rooms proper with club rooms in front and mezzanine for the use of the lodge members. These will make a building that will be a credit not only to Newark but as well to Central Ohio and will be one of the prettiest Masonic temples in the state. It will be fireproof and arranged with all modern conveniences and appurtenances.

The meeting was called to order by F. L. Beggs, president of the trustees of The Temple Association, who explained in a brief, but comprehensive talk the plans outlined for the building and the method of raising the amount necessary to erect it. The estimated cost of the building will be $60,000. Mr. Beggs then introduced Mr. Redding, who explained at some length the plans he had on exhibition and answered the many questions put to him by the members, who evinced deep interest in the matter. The plans were closely scrutinized and gave satisfaction to those present.

Following the talk of Mr. Redding short speeches were made by W. F. Giffin, J. A. Flory, Rev. J. A. Bennett and others along a very encouraging line. Pledges were then distributed and in a short time over $5,000 were pledged as a starter and many present took away with them pledge cards to secure other signatures.

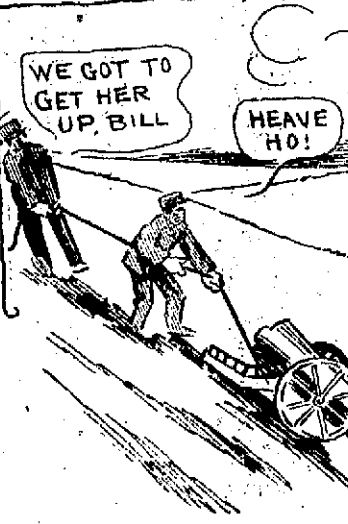

The plan of financing the project makes it strictly an investment for those who subscribe and no one is asked to donate the money. All they are asked to do is to pay whatever they feel that they can spare and the amount of money subscribed will draw interest at 4 per cent after May 1, 1914. The stock is all owned by five Masonic bodies of the city, and there will be no individual stockholders. Membership certificates of the denomination of $25 each will be issued and each Mason is asked to take as many shares as he can afford. Two years are given in which to pay this money payments to be made quarterly until the money is all paid in. Then as above stated, the certificates will draw 4 per cent interest and be redeemable at the death of the owner or sooner at the option of the Temple Company. Thus it will be seen that a member of the order will practically have a sum set aside which can be drawn upon at death by the members of his family. In the meantime he will have an income from his certificate which will pay his lodge dues, and thus, if he desires to have it turned over to the lodge for that purpose, will ever prevent him from lapsing in his dues and becoming suspended for non-payment. It is strictly a business proposition, and one that will appeal to every member of the order.

Any Mason whether a member of the local bodies or not is entitled to become a shareholder in this organization, if he so desires and thus be personally interested in the success of the temple. The subscription carries no responsibility for the liabilities of the Temple Company but is an investment pure and simple.

Following is a copy of the agreement or pledge that was so liberally (Continued on page 11, col. 2.)

A telegram to the Advocate at 4:30 p. m. Saturday says Tinnell Buehler, 21 son of the late Tinnell Buehler and nephew of John Zimmerly was found dead at Indianapolis, Ind. Saturday afternoon. The message says he was either accidentally killed or murdered the cause of the death not having been determined.

PHYSICIAN IS MISSING

Coshocton, March 23.—A posse of friends is today searching the country five miles south of here to locate Dr. Wm. H. Barcroft, a prominent physician, who has been missing since last Wednesday. It is feared that he has fallen to death. He started to walk four miles to see a patient and has not been seen since.

Dr. Barcroft will be remembered here as being one of the examining physicians appointed to inquire into the sanity of Dan Moreland, charged with the murder of Elsie Henthorne of Pataskala. Dr. Barcroft was appointed by Judge Samuel H. Nicholas, who presided at the Moreland trial, and acted with Dr. Stimson and Dr. J. T. Harbottle.

BURNS ON STAND AT COLUMBUS

In Bribery Trial of Sen. Huffman Injects Ginger in Case

ADJOURNED TO MONDAY

When Establishment of Alibi by Defense Will be Resumed---Break of Sen. McGuire.

Columbus, March 23.—I testified in the Senator Lorimer investigation at Washington that private detectives are nothing but a bunch of blackmailing thieves and I repeat it now. I also said that some lawyers were in the same class and I swear that is my honest opinion now.

This statement from William J. Burns, head of the Burns detective agency of Chicago, last evening on the witness stand in the Senator Huffman trial, with a number of other statements by witnesses, gave the first ginger to the case, which has been dragging along all week, and furnished an enlivening scene for the drop of the curtain until Monday.

The defense practically had finished its evidence toward the building up of an alibi for the accused senator, when the state placed Mr. Burns on the stand, to rebut testimony assailing the character and reputation of Detective Frank Harrison Smiley, Burns operative, who worked up bribery cases against accused senators.

Mr. Burns said Smiley had been in his employ since 1909 and that he never had occasion to question his veracity or character. He said that he had investigated thoroughly the charges against Smiley as to his connection with the defense and Chicago Forge and Bolt Works cases in Chicago before employing him and had found them to be without foundation.

The defense was lying in wait for the detective chief and was fortified with a transcript of his testimony before the Lorimer investigating committee. The first question asked by Attorney Belcher was whether "Detective Smiley had not been a private detective before entering his service. Mr. Burns answered that he had been.

Then came the question which brought forth the statement about private detectives. Mr. Belcher was violently agitated. Rising to his feet, he put the question, almost in a yell—

"Did you not, in the Lorimer investigation, state that private detectives are nothing more than a bunch of half-baked, blackmailing thieves?"

"Yes, sir," I said it then and I say it now. I also put some attorneys in the same class."

Next came a definition by Mr. Burns of the half-baked class. He defined them as private detectives who do not know how to go about raking in money from persons employing them. He then took the transcript and read a number of pages of the testimony along that line which he had given in the Lorimer investigation.

To Senator S. B. McGuire of Canal Dover must go the credit for "spilling the beans" of the defense's alibi. He appeared as a witness for the defense.

He told how he had gone to the senate smoking room on the afternoon of April 27 to see Senator Cretone about a committee meeting that night and saw Cretone and Detective Smiley talking together on a couch. He said Cretone introduced him to the detective, calling him Mr. Smiley.

The detective was not generally known as Smiley until later, when the bribery cases were sprung and indictments were returned by the grand jury. He was known as "Harrison," the name under which he registered at Chittenden Hotel, and by which name he was alleged to have been known to the legislators.

DICK HOLLER ARRAIGNED; DID NOT PLEAD

Dick Holler, who was returned to Newark from Chicago, by Capt. Swank to answer to the charge of murder in first degree in connection with the lynching of Carl Eberington, was taken into court Saturday for the purpose of pleading to the indictment, but the matter was passed until a later date.

LAST TRIBUTE TO HEROES OF THE "OLD MAINE"

Washington, March 23.—With all the pomp and solemnity that a mighty nation pays its heroes of war the last remains of the dead of the battleship Maine were laid away in the hills of Virginia in Arlington cemetery, side by side with the PinletoCt mfwyp papapay side with those who were brought from Havana after the war with Spain in the earth of the Old Dominion.

Seldom in history has been planned a higher tribute that was paid the 64 men of the Maine. Government business was practically suspended by executive order. President Taft, members of his cabinet, the highest officials of the army and navy, marine officers, representatives from the different departments and many foreign representatives were in attendance.

Over the government building flags were hung at half staff and congress adjourned for the day. Elaborate and careful preparations were made for the services if the burial beginning with the removal of the bodies from the Birmingham which brought them up, and concluding by the firing of the three volleys of musketry over the newly made graves. The addresses were confined to three persons, President Taft, Father Chadwick, chaplain of the Maine when the explosion sent her to the bottom, and Chaplain Baird.

During the memorial services arrangements were completed for the tolling of the "Paul Revere" bell of the All Souls' Lutheran church which has always tolled for the funerals of presidents, admirals, generals and other prominent men. The place at the head of the mourners was given to President Taft.

POSSE STILL ON HUNT FOR ALLEN

Hillsville, Va., March 23.—No further captures were reported early today by the posse endeavoring to get the Allen fugitives on the North Carolina border. The arrest of young Sidney Edwards left four men wanted, Sidney Allen, leader of the clan, who is believed to have fired the shot that killed Judge Massie, Wesley Edwards and Fried and Claud Allen. Poses of a 100 or more searched the hills for the fugitives in that vicinity.

There is much talk over the reported offer of Sidney Allen to surrender on the condition that he be allowed to plead guilty to a charge of second degree murder in a court outside of Carroll county.

GIRL'S ASSAILANT GETS 61 YEARS

Salt Lake City, March 23.—Quick justice was dealt out here today when George Parry, 38, was arrested yesterday charged with attacking an 11-year-old girl. He was sentenced to 61 years in the state penitentiary. Parry was pardoned in 1910 after serving 9 years of 20 year sentence on a similar charge.

GASOLINE TANK EXPLODES; CHARLES BRYSON INJURED

Charles Bryson, age about 12 years, of 76 Western avenue, was injured severely and frightened worse Saturday morning by the explosion of a gasoline tank in the barn in the rear of his home but he had sufficient possession of his faculties to deny that he had anything to do with the cause of the "blow-up."

Bryson, whose father, I. M. Bryson, runs a taxicab line, was playing about the barn a short time before the explosion. He declares that he does not know what caused it. That as he was about to leave the building, the tank let go and he was hurled with great force against the door. His side and arm were badly bruised by the contact. The tank which blew up was a large steel receptacle for gasoline. It was empty except a small quantity in the bottom which is believed to have evaporated, filling the interior with an explosive vapor. A lighted match near the tank would have set it off, but young Bryson declares that he had no matches in the place.

The tank was blown upwards. Many valuable tools and some material in the upper room were scattered about on the floor. The building did not take fire but the noise of the explosion was heard for several blocks.

Couch shells are used as a substitute for window glass in some parts of the Philippines.

CHAPTER XXX.

The Judge Receives a Letter.

After he had parted with Solomon Mahaffy the judge applied himself diligently to shaping that miracle-working document, which he was preparing as an offset to whatever risk he ran in meeting Pentress. As sanguine as he was sanguinary he confidently expected to survive the encounter, yet it was well to provide for a possible emergency—had he not his grandson's future to consider? While thus occupied he saw the afternoon stage arrive and depart from before the City Tavern.

Half an hour later Mr. Wesley, the postmaster, came sauntering up the street. In his hand he carried a letter.

"Howdy," he drawled, from just beyond the judge's open door.

The judge glanced up, his quill pen poised aloft.

"Good evening, sir; won't you step inside and be seated?" he asked graciously. His dealings with the United States mail service were of the most insignificant description, and in personally delivering a letter, if this was what had brought him there, he felt Mr. Wesley had reached the limit of official courtesy and despatch.

"Well, sir; it looks like you'd never told us more than two-thirds of the truth!" said the postmaster. He surveyed the judge curiously.

"I am complimented by your opinion of my veracity," responded that gentleman promptly. "I consider two-thirds an enormously high per cent. to have achieved."

"There is something in that, too," agreed Mr. Wesley. "Who is Colonel Slocum Price Turberville?"

The judge started up from his chair.

"I have that honor," said he, bowing.

"Well, here's a letter come in addressed like that, and as you're being using part of the name I am willing to assume you're legally entitled to the rest of it. It clears up a point that off-and-on has troubled me considerably. I can only wonder I wasn't smarter."

"What point, may I ask?"

"Why, about the time you hung out your shingle here, some one wrote a letter to General Jackson. It was mailed after night, and when I seen it in the morning I was clean beat. I couldn't locate the handwriting, and yet I kept that letter back a couple of days and give it all my spare time. It ain't that I'm one of your spying sort—there's nothing of the Yankee about me!"

"Certainly not," agreed the judge.

"Candid, judge. I reckon you wrote that letter, seeing this one comes under a frank from Washington. No, sir—I couldn't make out who was corresponding with the president, and it worried me, not knowing, more than anything I've had to contend against since I came into office. I calculate there ain't a postmaster in the United States takes a more personal interest in the service than me. I've frequently set patrons right when they was in doubt as to the date they had mailed 'such and such a letter.' As Mr. Wesley sometimes canceled as many as three or four stamps in a single day he might have been pardoned his pride in a brain which thus lightly dealt with the burden of official business. He surrendered the letter with marked reluctance.

"Your surmise is correct," said the judge with dignity. "I had occasion to write my friend, General Jackson, and unless I am greatly mistaken I have my answer here." And with a fine air of indifference he tossed the letter on the table.

"And do you know Old Hickory?" cried Mr. Wesley.

"Why not? Does it surprise you?" inquired the judge. It was only his innate courtesy which restrained him from kicking the postmaster into the street, so intense was his desire to be rid of him.

"No, I don't know as it does, judge. Naturally a public man like him is in the way of meeting with all sorts. A politician can't afford to be too blame particular. Well, next time you write you might just send him my regards—G. W. M. de L. Wesley's regards—there was considerable contention over my getting this office; I reckon he ain't forgot. There was speeches made, I understand the lie was passed between two United States senators, and that a quid of tobacco was thrown in anger." Having thus clearly established the fact that he was a more or less national character, Mr. Wesley took himself off.

When he had disappeared from sight down the street, the judge closed the door. Then he picked up the letter. For a long minute he held it in his hand, uncertain, fearful, while his mind slipped back into the past until his inward searching vision ferreted

"That's what Jackson remembers if he remembers anything!" he muttered, as with trembling fingers he broke the seal. Almost instantly a smile overspread his battered features. He hitched his chin higher and squared his ponderous shoulders. "I am not forgotten—no, damn it—no!" he exulted under his breath. "Recalls me with sincere esteem and considers my services to the country as well worthy of recognition—" the judge breathed deep. What would Mahaffy find to say now? Certainly this was well calculated to disturb the sour cynicism of his friend. His gleaming eyes brimmed. After all his groping he had touched hands with the realities at last! Even a federal judgeship, though not an office of first repute in the south, had its dignity—it signified something! He would make Solomon his clerk! The judge reached for his hat. Mahaffy must know at once that fortune had mended for them. Why, at that moment he was actually in receipt of an income!

He sat down, the better to enjoy the unique sensation. Taxes were being levied and collected with no other aid in view than his staid—his ardent fancy saw the whole machinery of government in operation for his benefit. It was a singular feeling he experienced. Then promptly his spendthrift brain became active. He needed clothes—so did Mahaffy—so did his grandson; they must take a larger house; he would buy himself a man servant; these were pressing necessities as he now viewed them.

Once again he reached for his hat; the desire to rush off to Belle Plain was overmastering.

"I reckon I'd be justified in hiring a conveyance from Pegloe," he thought, but just here he had a saving memory of his unfinished task; that claimed precedence and he resumed his pen.

An hour later Pegloe's black boy presented himself to the judge. He came bearing a gift, and the gift appropriately enough was a square case bottle of respectable size. The judge was greatly touched by this attention, but he began by making a most temperate use of the tavern-keeper's offering; then as the formidable document he was preparing took shape under his hand he more and more lost that feeling of Spartan fortitude, which had at first sustained him in the presence of temptation. He wrote and sipped in complete and quiet luxury, and when at last he had exhausted the contents of the bottle he occurred to him that it would be only proper personally to convey his thanks to Pegloe. Perhaps he was not inspired in this by ulterior hopes; if so, they were richly rewarded. The resources of the City Tavern were suddenly placed at his disposal. He attributed this to a variety of causes all good and sufficient, but the real reason never suggested itself; indeed it was of such a perfunctory nature that the judge, open and generous-minded, did not have grasped it.

By six o'clock he was undeniably drunk; at eight he was sounding still deeper depths of inebriety, with only the most confused memory of impending events; at ten he collapsed and was borne upstairs by Pegloe and his black boy to a remote chamber in the kitchen wing. Here he was undressed and put to bed, and the tavern-keeper, making a bundle of his clothes, retired from the room, locking the door after him, and the judge was doubly a prisoner.

Rousing at last from a heavy, dreamless sleep the judge was aware of a faint impalpable light in his room, the ashen light of a dull October dawn. He was aware, too, of a feeling of profound depression. He knew this was the aftermath of indulgence and that he might look forward to forty-eight hours of utter misery of soul, and, groaning aloud, he closed his eyes. Sleep was the thing if he could compass it. Instead, his memory quickened. Something was to happen at sun-up—he could not recall what it was to be, though he distinctly remembered that Mahaffy had spoken of this very matter—Mahaffy, the austere and implacable, the disembodied conscience whose fealty to duty had somehow survived his own spiritual ruin, so that he had become a sort of moral sign-post, ever pointing the way yet never going it himself.

The judge lay still and thought deeply as the light intensified itself. What was it that Mahaffy had said he was to do at sun-up? The very hour accented his suspicions. Probably it was no more than some cheerless obligation to be met, or Mahaffy would not have been so concerned about it. Eventually he decided to defer everything to Mahaffy. He spoke his friend's name weakly and in a shaking voice, but received no answer.

"Solomon!" he repeated, and shifting his position, looked in what should have been the direction of the shake-down bed his friend occupied. Neither the bed nor Mahaffy were there. The judge gasped—he wondered if this were not a premonition of certain hallucinations to which he was not a stranger. Then all in a flash he remembered Pentress and the meeting at Boggs', something of how the evening had been spent, and a spasm of regret shook him.

"I had other things to think of. This must never happen again!" he told himself remorsefully.

He was wide-awake now. Doubtless Pegloe had put him to bed. Well, that had been thoughtful of Pegloe—he would not forget him—the City Tavern should continue to enjoy his patronage. It would be something for Pegloe to boast of that Judge Slocum Price Turberville always made his place headquarters when in Raleigh. Feeling that he had already conferred wealth and distinction on the fortunate Pegloe the judge thrust his fat legs over the side of his bed and stood erect. Stopping he reached for his clothes. He confidently expected to find them on the floor, but his hand merely swept an uncarpeted waste.

The judge was profoundly astonished. "Maybe I've got 'em on. I don't recall taking them off," he thought hopefully. He moved uncertainly in the direction of the window, where the light showed him his own bare extremities. He reverted to his original idea that his clothes were scattered about the floor.

He was beginning to experience a great sense of haste; it was two miles to Boggs' and Pentress would be there at sun-up. Finally he abandoned his quest of the missing garments and turned to the door. To say that he was amazed when he found it locked would have meant inadequately described his emotions. Breathing deep, he felt a step or two, and then with all the vigor he could muster he launched himself at the door. But it resisted him.

"It bolted on the other side!" he muttered, the full measure of Pegloe's perfidy revealing itself to his mind. He was agast. It was a plot to discredit him. Pegloe's hospitality had been inspired by his enemy, for Pegloe was Pentress' tenant.

Again he attacked the door; he believed it might be possible to force it from its hinges, but Pegloe had done his work too well for that, and at last, spent and breathless, the judge dropped down on the edge of his bed to consider the situation. He was without clothes and he was a prisoner, yet his mind rose splendidly to meet the difficulties that beset him. His greatest activities were reserved for what appeared to be only a season of despair. He armed himself with a three-legged stool he had found and turned once more to the door, but the stout planks stood firm under his blows.

"Unless I get out of here in time I'm a ruined man!" thought the judge. "After this Pentress will refuse to meet me!"

The window next engaged his attention. That, too, Pegloe had taken the precaution to fasten, but a single savage and sash and left an empty space that framed the dawn's red glow. The judge looked out and shook his head dubiously. It was twelve feet or more to the ground, a risky drop for a gentleman of his years and build. The judge considered making a rope of his bedding and lowering himself to the ground by means of it; he remembered to have read of captives in that interesting French prison, the Bastille, who did this. However, an equally ingenious but much more simple use for his bedding occurred to him; it would form a soft and yielding substance on which to alight. He gathered it up into his arms, feather-tick and all, and pushed it through the window, then he wriggled out across the ledge, feet first, and lowering himself to the full length of his arms, dropped.

He landed squarely on the rolled-up bed with a jar that shook him to his center. Almost gaily he snatched up a quilt, draping it about him after the manner of a Roman toga, and thus lightly habited, started across Mr. Pegloe's truck-patch, his one thought Boggs' and the sun. It would have served no purpose to have gone home, since his entire wardrobe, except for the shirt on his back, was in the tavern-keeper's possession, besides he had not a moment to lose, for the sun was peeping at him over the horizon.

Unobserved he gained the edge of the town and the highroad that led past Boggs' and stole a fearful glance over his shoulder. The sun was clear of the treetops, he could even feel the lifeless dust grow warm beneath his feet, and wrapping the quilt closer about him he broke into a labored run.

Some twenty minutes later Boggs' came in sight. He experienced a moment of doubt—doubtless Pentress had been there, and gone! It was a hideous thought and the judge groaned. Then at the other end of the meadow, near the woods he distinguished several men, Pentress and his friends beyond question. The judge laughed aloud. In spite of everything he was keeping his engagement, he was plucking his triumph out of the very jaws of failure. The judge threw himself over the fence, a corner of the quilt caught on one of the rails; he turned to release it, and in that instant two pistol shots rang out sharply in the morning air.

BRICK HURLED THROUGH GLASS SHOW WINDOW

Thieves Make Away With a Small Quantity of Jewelry from Loan Office—Try To Enter Brilliant Store.

A successful effort was made some time Friday night or early Saturday morning to burglarize the Cole loan office in South Second street. The thieves smashed a window with a brick and made way with a quantity of jewelry. Probably the same parties attempted to enter the Brilliant store in South Third street where it was discovered that a glass cutter had been used on the glass in the rear door in an effort to make an opening by which the bar which prevented the opening of the door, might be removed. The police have no clue.

The burglary at the loan office was discovered by the proprietor Saturday morning when the door was opened up. A large paving stone was found on the floor of the room. The brick had been hurled through the front display window.

An investigation revealed the fact that several watch chains, both for ladies and gentlemen, had been stolen besides several rings, a watch and other valuables. The police have been furnished with a list of the stolen property.

Investigation made Saturday morning showed blood spots on the window frame and it is believed that the thief cut or scratched his arm in reaching through the broken window to lift the jewelry.

At the Brilliant store could be seen where several efforts had been made to cut an opening through the glass. A heavy iron bar across the door on the inside, prevented the thieves from gaining an entrance. The glass was also protected by iron bars and after the holes were cut in the panes, it was impossible to reach through to get hold of the bar.

It is believed that the thieves were frightened away from the latter place before finishing their work.

INCREASING ATTENDANCE AT SERVICES

The special Gospel services being held at the First M. E. church are increasing in interest and attendance. Dr. Oborn preached a helpful and interesting sermon last night. "I am come that they might have life and have it more abundantly." His sermon last night was more particularly to church members endeavoring to show that the Christ life in its fullest sense is the life that will tell for a great work for mankind. Apt illustrations were given whereby the Gospel Truth was made clear.

Prof. Ball is proving himself not only to be a great singer but a great director of chorus singing.

Dr. Oborn will preach tomorrow morning at 10:30 and will deliver his sermon-lecture "The hand that rules the world" to women only in the afternoon at 2:30 and will preach again at 7 o'clock in the evening.

Prof. Ball is anxious to have a large congregation both Sunday morning and Sunday evening in order to assist in the general interest and the singing.

"PROGRESSIVE"
WAS TEDDY'S
"GOOD" TRUST

New chapters are added to the story of the Steel Trust in the Macrae report to the House investigating committee. It has been a progressive recital with increasingly Progressive bearings.

When President Roosevelt sanctioned the absorption of the Tennessee Coal and Iron company he was told by the Morgan emissaries that the Steel Corporation held no more than 60 per cent of the country's "steel properties," says the New York World.

But it now appears that the corporation held 80 per cent of the valuation of such properties. It appears that the Morgan house received $69,300,000 net profits for promotion and other services to that combination. It appears that for this immense reward
the country was saddled with monopoly enough in the steel industry to exact 40 per cent profits on the cost of production and produce net earnings of over a billion dollars in nine years for the satisfaction of a grossly inflated capitalization.

This marks the "good" trust. It is a measure of the modest. It reveals the pitiful nature of one of poor Taft's trust prosecutions which is characteristic of them all. It affords some explanation of why we must change back in the White House occupany and why the Perkins and Garys are with us in this view. Where there is interference with good trusts at $69-300,000 promotion profit per trust, it is time for all friends of Progress to get together.

GOV. HARMON AND THE ONE PER CENT TAX

County auditors of the state paid a fine tribute to Governor Harmon's sagacity, during their meeting in Columbus recently, when they unanimously adopted a resolution calling for the adoption of the one per cent tax limit by the delegates to the constitutional convention.

That vote shows what the men who have expert knowledge about the resources and collection of public revenues think of the one cent limit.
They know it is a success, not fully at present, probably, but certain to be in a very short time.

It is saying to the world, "Here in Ohio our taxes are not more than one per cent, with a possibility of being half that or less—come over where taxes are low." And the beauty of the situation is that they are made low by the equality of assessment and the honesty of return, and thus encouraging a nobler and purer citizenship.
That one act of the auditors' convention is the greatest event that has taken place in Ohio for many a year.
It is the most intelligent opinion proclaiming that the one per cent limit shall stand through the years to come.

But for the insistent fight Governor Harmon made for this law, it would not have been enacted. It was fought more bitterly than any other measure that was considered during the 1911 legislative session.

One Republican senator went so far during discussion of the bill in the upper branch of the general assembly, as to say that the different units of government could not be conducted under it and that he would vote for the bill because of the trouble it would make for Governor Harmon.

But such a dire prediction did not deter Governor Harmon from his purpose to have the tax rate lowered through this bill.

The Sugar Trust is charged with violating the Tenth Commandment. It would have violated eleven if it had been so many.

"Politics is not a game," says Mr.
Roosevelt. This relieves him from the obligation of paying any attention to the rules.

During the past 10 years about 1,000,000 Americans have crossed the border line to make their homes in Canada Northwest, and it is expected that this emigration, which is almost wholly from the Middle West, will this year take fully 150,000 more from this country. Add to this the flow of population from that region to the South, the Southwest, the still farther West and to the East, and it will be seen that the States in the Mississippi Valley are steadily losing in their agricultural districts. This explains why Iowa was the only State in the Union that actually decreased in population from 1900 to 1910, and why stagnation prevails in other Commonwealths. The East, and especially the great manufacturing States of Massachusetts, New York, Pennsylvania and New Jersey, are now growing much more rapidly than the Middle West. Some States comparatively insignificant in population, such as Kansas, manage to make an incredible amount of noise through their flamboyant politicians, but the voting strength of the country lies well east of the Mississippi, and it promises to remain there for many years.

The Governor's Victory.

(Ohio State Journal.)

It seems in spite of the opposition of some Democrats, who were grievously disappointed because Governor Harmon proposed to be a progressive governor and run his own administration, he carries the state delegation to the national Democratic convention.
That was about the extent of the reactionary charge against him. The fact is the Democrats never had a more progressive, independent, courageous governor than Judson Harmon. He has shown to the world that it is possible that a Democrat may be a pretty fair governor.

The charge that he is a reactionary is one of Bill Allen's barren idealities.
Some people have an idea that to be progressive, a man has to spit fire.
But Governor Harmon is not that sort.
In common with all well-poised Republican progressives, he will not permit pretense to supplant reason. He is the man who said guilt is personal and stood by it. Judged by his actual record in office, he is a progressive of the progressives.

We speak of this in reference to Governor Harmon because we have the same sort of people in the Republican party, who malign their betters for being reactionaries, when they are better and truer progressives than their maligners. No man is true to any principle who goes wild and reckless in its support. In the very nature of things, you build the new out of the old, just as you turn old wheat into a field of golden grain.

PEDESTRIANS ON 9,000 MILE JAUNT STOP IN NEWARK

Charles Garrett, aged 35, and Fred Connor, 27, both of Salt Lake City, Utah, were in Newark Saturday morning on a 9,000-mile stroll for a wager of $11,000, according to their own story, related to Mayor Swartz and Chief of Police Blizard
this morning.

The two men are backed by the Olympic Sporting Club of their city against the Salt Lake City Country Club, these clubs posting the wager of $11,000.

According to agreement, the men must make the trip from Salt Lake City to Miami, Fla., thence to Philadelphia, Pa., and back to Salt Lake City by July 3, this year. They left home April 3, 1911, and in the 11 months and 20 days they have been out they have covered 7842 miles.
They are 1500 miles ahead of the record mileage in a year of any other pedestrian known.

According to their present plans,
they will go from here to Dublin, Tex., where they will double their trail to Salt Lake City.

Garrett claims to have made 30 miles in Pennsylvania through snow and deep.

Garrett states that he was with the great Weston when he passed through Newark about five years ago. He says he has been walking since he was 15 years of age, when he made a journey of 1800 miles. At this time the temperature was never above 35 degrees and most of the time it was below zero.
He is a western man born and raised.

The pedestrians will remain in Newark until Monday, when they will start for Columbus. They are several weeks ahead of their schedule and use their spare time in selling small photos of themselves to finance their trip.

When they landed in Newark this morning they had but 25 cents, but were able to pick up considerable loose change about the city, selling the pictures.

hurt when five coaches of the second section of the Vancouver express of the Canadian Pacific railway, left night, and rolled down the embankment.

The Advocate made diligent inquiry in Granville in the hope that he would be able to locate some of the relatives of the injured man, but aside from learning that a family named Hollinger formerly resided in the village, nothing further was learned.

THE HUMAN PROCESSION

By O. T. Errence.

PROF. GIDDINGS, 57 TODAY, EXPRESSES A FEAR.

Dr. Franklin Henry Giddings, of Columbia University, who is considered the leading sociological authority of America, is today celebrating his fifty-seventh birthday by sounding a clarion call to his countrymen. Prof. Giddings doesn't ask us to fight, nor even to vote, but to indulge in the luxury of larger families. Otherwise the race suicide bugaboo will get us, and the barbarians will overrun us, and a future Gibbon will write another "Decline and Fall" dealing with the great American republic. Thus does a plank of the Rooseveltian platform find scientific justification.

Prof. Giddings apparently never expects to run for the Presidency, for he comes right out and says the following, to wit: "The people who are maintaining the human race today are the barbarians, the half-civilized and the ignorant and brutalized people, not the people that have inherited the wealth, the morals, the knowledge and the advantages of civilization."
"Some people," continues Prof. Giddings, "have an idea that if every family has two children, that will maintain the race." It won't, he assures us, and proves it by statistics.
"Every family must have an average of four plus two, because you must allow for the children that die in infancy, as well as for people who do not marry and for childless married couples."

Dr. Giddings says his investigations in New York City disclose the fact that only the newest immigrants, and principally those from Italy, Poland and Russia, are doing their full duty toward posterity. Well-to-do residents of the metropolis have an average of two children.

"The men that are the leaders of men in the United States," the Professor has found, "have come from families having six or more children, and a large proportion of successful men have written sarcastic."

men have been the youngest child.
The history of the United States shows that the man who has achieved distinction has been the sixth or seventh child in a remarkable number of instances.

"Why are we working so desperatly hard to make something of this great country?" Prof. Giddings inquires. "Because of our grandchildren? Well, we won't have any, as things are going now. The future of the United States will be in the hands of the children of the races we now despise."

The reason for the increasing tendency toward race suicide? Yes, Prof.
Giddings can tell you that, too. We are struggling too hard for wealth, for comforts, for leisure, for education, for travel, for enjoyment, for social standing—for the things, in short, that we have come to believe make life worth living, and we prefer them to a lot of crying babies. That's the Professor's exact language, but it is the gist of it. We are becoming cynical, and we want to know what Posterity, the capitalized God of the New Sociology, has ever done for us.

And now, having presented the sociological side of the argument, we will close with a selection from Mr.
Benjamin De Casserety's protest against Posterity.

"We who are living, palpitating in the flesh and blood present, have no rights; the ego is not sufficient unto itself; we are only straws to show which way the sociological winds are blowing; we are only bricks and mortar that shall go into the building of that marvelous, fantastic, phantasmal edifice to house that coming holy family—Posterity. Our deeds have no value unless they feed the bulging belly of incalculable non-existent tomorrows."

One suspects that Mr. De Casserety has "written sarcastic."

THE FIERY FURNACE.

With my old furnace I have tinkered through weary months of grief and groan, and I am sooted up and clinkered, my reason totters on its throne. And so I'm glad that spring is coming with balmy winds and skies of blue, when humming birds will be a-humming, and katydids their stunts will do.
The furnace is a weird invention that makes men wish that they were dead; its whims, too numerous to mention, drive patient guys to painting red. On balmy days it earns its wages, and throws out fifty kinds of heat;
but when a howling blizzard rages, it soldiers till you freeze your feet, stores up heaps and heaps of ashes, and when you shake the blamed things down, they spoil your whiskers and mustaches, and eke your staid and your gown. Around my furnace I have been rounded up and nearly slaughtered, and buried in a basswood crate.
And now spring harbingers are harboring, the wintry days are almost gone; and soon, my form in flynet garb-ing, an straw hat upon my brow, you'll hear me ranting round and grouching about the same as I do now.

SUFFERED NEARLY TWELVE YEARS PERUNA MY RELIEF.

Mr. James P. Bracken, 442 W. 43d St., New York City, N. Y., writes:

"For nearly a dozen years catarrh has bothered me in one form or another. I was troubled with nasal catarrh that had affected my stomach, which troubled me most in the morning. My appetite was poor, and I did not seem to relish my food. Indigestion bothered me at times, also. I was advised to take Peruna, and I took it as prescribed for a month, when my cure was almost complete. Today there is not a trace of catarrh in my system, and I can say without hesitation that Peruna cured me."

Nasal Catarrh and Indigestion.
Mr. Frank Richter, 309 East Second St., Winona, Minn., writes: "As a remedy for catarrh I take pleasure in recommending Peruna for catarrh of the stomach."

System in Bad Condition.
Mr. Michael Rooney, 26 Fifth St., Watervliet, N. Y., writes: "If I had known of Peruna years ago I should have been saved much suffering. Under carelessness and exposure in my younger years my system got into a very bad condition before I was aware of it. My friends advised me to try Peruna, for which I am very thankful, as it has cured me in two months."

The Whole Aim Of Marriage.

THE inimitable G. K. Chesterton has said, "The whole aim of marriage is to fight through and survive the instant when incompatibility becomes unquestionable."

We all know Chesterton, and we enjoy the clever thrust of this, and think of our various acquaintances it hits, though it does not, of course, touch us.

We would hate to think that marriage generally was continued on this basis. And we take comfort to ourselves that at any rate, we have not yet arrived at that instant.

But that many do arrive at it is without question. And the fact that they do not survive it, is what keeps the divorce mill running.

Of course, the question of compatibility ought to be studied before marriage. But it seldom is. It is taken for granted. Two people find delight in each other's society. They like, or they think they do, the same books and plays and music and pictures. If now and then, there is a little rift, it is quickly bridged over. And all goes smilingly. The question of compatibility is never searched deeply, down to foundation things.

Then some day, the two wake up, and they find there is no compatibility. The wife wants to go one way, the husband another. They discover that their common likings are the merest superficialities. It is this awakening, this shock, that is disastrous to some. If sympathy dies out, if quarrels slip in, they are on the road to the divorce court or a most unhappy married existence.

But if they can fight through and survive this, if they can summon forbearance, if they can find some good still left, they can go forward, not perhaps to the ecstatic state they had anticipated, but to a far happier condition than divorce or continual quarrelling will bring them.

But some will say, why do this? Why live a lie? There are many reasons for doing it. And rightly lived, such a life is not a lie. If there are children, here is a reason quite sufficient. Children should not be brought up in a home that is a battle-ground between husband and wife. A divorce would probably be better than this. But if mutual forbearance rules, the children can grow up in a calm, apparently happy atmosphere. And since they are brought here without choice, some things are due them.

Then again, the lot of the divorced man or woman is not a particularly happy one. Although among the Four Hundred, it may be more fashionable to be divorced than to be happily married, in the average American community, the divorced person is looked at askance. And the man or woman who flies to the divorce court, the instant incompatibility is discovered, will not find his future path quite as bright and care-free as anticipated.

But there is a still higher reason than these. Through the forbearance and self-control that takes the place of the rapturous emotion of the first chapter of married life, there will be a steady upbuilding of character. When the twain have fought through and survived that instant when incompatibility is discovered, and the storm waves have subsided, there will be found to be some fragments of love left. The two can help each other yet. Seeing now with clearer vision, they may discover they are more necessary to each other than before, necessary that is to a beautiful development of character.

And so, though one may disagree with Chesterton, that the whole aim of marriage is to fight through this instant, it is in most cases better to fight it through and survive it, than to make a home-run for the divorce court to have shackles knocked off.

GOV. JOHNSON ON WOMAN SUFFRAGE

Governor Johnson of California in his recent address before the constitutional convention at Columbus said:

"In the beginning, I was not an ardent advocate of equal suffrage, but I thought it should be left with the people. I insisted, without taking any side, that if a large proportion of the people wanted the question submitted to them, it was their right to have it.

"We have had three municipal elections in California since the woman suffrage amendment was adopted. In the latter contest in many districts the women registered in greater proportion than the men, and they voted in a greater proportion than the men, and they voted quite as intelligently and discriminatingly as the men.

"One judge, who presided at an election, told me that there were four men who asked instructions as to how to vote in the Los Angeles election, and he said that in each case these instructions were given by women who happened to be present."

RESTORE GRAY HAIR TO NATURAL COLOR

By Common Garden Sage, a Simple Remedy for Dandruff, Falling, Faded, Gray Hair.

The old idea of using Sage for darkening the hair is again coming in vogue. Our grandmothers had dark glossy hair at seventy-five, while our mothers are gray before they are fifty. Our grandmothers kept their hair soft and glossy with a "Sage Tea," which also restored the natural color.

One objection to using such a preparation was the trouble of making it. This objection has been overcome by the Weyth Chemical Company of New York, who have placed on the market a superior preparation of Sage, combined with Sulphur and other valuable remedies for dandruff, itching scalp and thin, weak, falling hair.

The beauty of the hair depends more on its rich, even shading than anything else. Don't have dry, harsh faded hair! Bring back the color in a few days; and don't be tormented with dandruff, itching scalp and loose falling hairs. Weyth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy will quickly correct these troubles, and give color strength, and beauty to your hair.

Get a fifty cent bottle from your druggist today, and prove this to your own satisfaction. All druggists sell it, under guarantee that the money will be refunded if the remedy is not exactly as represented. Frank D. Hall, 10 North Side Square.

JOINT CONCERT AT GRANVILLE LAST EVENING

Wesleyan and Denison Glee Clubs Entertain Large Audience With An Excellent Program.

A bit of college life with its mirth and free hearted songs was enjoyed by a large audience of Newark and Granville people at the town hall in Granville on Friday evening when the glee clubs of Wesleyan and Denison gave a joint concert.

The Denison club opened the program Bullard's "Sword of Ferrara," and they were followed by the Wesleyan quartet, composed of Harry P. Hunter, first tenor, Horace E. Dewey, second tenor, Paul D. Tharpe, baritone and Howard M. Duff, bass. The first appearance of the Wesleyan Glee club was enthusiastically received and they sang two clever and bright numbers, "Invictus" by Bruno Huhn, and "Shoogy Shoo" by Paul Ambrose. They were then forced to respond to an encore and do so with a number which but served to increase the applause.

Mr. J. W. Wolfe of the Denison club possesses one of the most charming of baritone voices. His perfect ease and mastery of his voice were displayed to advantage in his Bedonin Love Song by Piniotti.

The second part of the program was opened by the Denison club singing Chiribiribin by Pestalozza and De Coppah Moon by Shelley. These numbers were delightfully given and the club responded with a bit of vaudeville in their rendition of a popular air, "That Spooky Tune." Mr. Banks, a reader, gave a very interesting reading of "Jean Val Jean and the Good Bishop," by Victor Hugo. Mr. Banks possesses remarkable ability and his selection was well chosen.

The third part was given over entirely to the Wesleyan club which put on a sketch called "College Days," and accented a "farce in three acts." Several clever take-offs were given that applied to the Granville college life and some interesting burlesque features were introduced. The Four Con brothers dancing act was well worthy of many of our worthy auditors. A number of popular songs were interpolated during the sketch by the club.

Mr. F. E. Wolfe's tenor solos of Berceuse from "Jocelyn" with violin obligato by C. M. Brown and Paul B. Parks' baritone solos, "The Bandoero" were two of the best things of the program and were forced to respond to an encore.

The program concluded with the Denison club singing "Land-sighting" by Grieg and the college anthem.

FACTS AND FICTION.

Experiences of Newark Citizens Are Easily Proved to Be Facts.

The most superficial investigation will prove that the following statement from a resident of Newark is true. Read it and compare evidence from Newark people with testimony of strangers living so far away you cannot investigate the facts of the case. Many more citizens of Newark endorse Doan's Kidney Pills.

Mr. J. R. Row, 98 N. Williams St., Newark, Ohio, says: Doan's Kidney Pills did me a lot of good when I used them some time ago. I had dizzy and nervous spells. My head ached and I did not sleep well at night. My kidneys were out of order and I had backaches. When I saw Doan's Kidney Pills advertised, I got a supply at A. F. Crayton & Co. of Dry Goods Store. Their use soon made me strong and well."

Daddy's Bedtime Story—

Three Little Kittens
And a Nice Woolly Muff

Found in the Coal Bin.

EVILYN liked kittens. So did Jack, and Tabby's latest family seemed the loveliest and cleverest in catdom.

"Well, if you want a kitten story," said daddy, "I will give you the story of these little kittens."

"The kittens were black, with white trimmings. Pansy had a white (flower shaped) patch on her pert turned up nose. Nebby's full name was Nebuchadnezzar, after the king in the Bible who ate grass. Nebby was fond of grass too. Cinderella was just black, except her feet, on which were little white slippers—pussy cat slippers of fur, you know."

"Every day Patsie cuddled and played with her kittens, and they learned a heap of cunning tricks. Cinders learned to climb up on the lace window curtains and when she got a good grip swayed back and forward."

"The kittens liked anything soft and woolly. They loved to cuddle on Patsie's woolen sweater, digging their little claws into it happily."

"Patsie's little white muff was the pride of her heart. Her auntie had knitted it for her as a birthday gift. Mostly Patsie took pretty good care of it—care of it for Patsie, I mean. Patsie was a little careless. Generally Patsie's mother or some member of the family would follow her when she took off her wraps and put them away if she forgot."

"But one day when she came from school there was no one else at home except the cook, who was taking a nap in her own room."

"Patsie threw her things on the settee in the hall and after she had some bread and jelly out of the pantry got a fairy book and stretched out on the couch in mother's room to read. The kittens had been asleep when she came home, and it was not until tea time that she saw them washing their faces demurely after their evening dish of warm milk."

"It was while Patsie was enjoying her second biscuit with honey that Hannah, the cook, stepped into the dining room with a black and dragged looking thing in her hand."

"The kittens have had this down in the cellar playing with it this afternoon, ma'am," said Hannah to Patsie's mamma. "I jest can't make out what it is, ma'am."

"But Patsie could. 'Oh, mamma, it's my white woolen muff! Those naughty kittens must have carried it off. Where did I put it? Why, yes, answered Patsie guiltily, I did lay it down in the hall, but I never thought the kittens would be so mean.'"

"Perhaps," replied mamma, "the kittens would say that they also never thought."

"And now Patsie has to wear mittens instead of a muff, for the muff had been in the coal bin and nothing ever would wash it clean."

THE STAGE

Coming Attractions At the Auditorium

Tonight—"Excuse Me."
Monday matinee and evening—
"The Cow and the Moon."
Tuesday March 26—"Mutt and Jeff."

Friday, March 29.—"The Light Eternal."

Saturday, Matinee and Night,
March 30.—"Sis Perkins."

Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday,
April 1-2-3—"The Light Eternal."

"Excuse Me." Tonight
Manager Johnson, of the Auditorium, enthusiastically announces Rupert Hughes' farce "Excuse Me" tonight. "Excuse Me" is described as a Pullman Car Carnival. All the has in its make-up that peculiar quality that demands support if there is sincerity in the eye of the public for the elevation of the stage. The theatre is becoming more and more a great popular teacher, and has in the past so often made propaganda for tippaner intolerance and intolerance that every encouragement should be given to an effort that demonstrates the high purpose it may serve and please the public at the same time.

The "Light Eternal" is a drama of the early Roman period, having to do with the persecution of the early Christians by the pagans under Emperor Diocletian.

There are two feature acts on the bill which opens at the cozy Arcade first three night stand in the history of the theatre in Newark, and it is offering proves itself up to the standard promised, will very likely be one long to be remembered by Newark theatre patrons.

"The Light Eternal" comes direct from the Lyceum theatre, Pittsburgh. The play is a powerful semi-religious spectacle of the early Roman period and has to do with the persecutions of the Christians by the pagan Caesars. The presenting company is of unusual size—numbering thirty people—while the scenic equipment is along extraordinary lines. Two large baggage cars are required for the transport of the company effects. The size and expense of the organization and the moderate prices charged make it impossible for the play to be offered on one night stands, hence the engagement here for three nights.

"The Light Eternal" comes highly indorsed by dramatic reviewers and with many recommendations from the clergy. It is a play that appeals not only to the regular churchgoers but is equally attractive to church people who seldom patronize the drama. One thought in connection with the playing of any attraction three nights in a city the size of Newark may be cited to the advantage of the management. Certainly the man who would bring an expensive organization to this or any other town of similar size must know the quality and power to please possessed by that organization, else he would be decidedly fool-hardy. It must be a big—genuinely big play—that can stay three nights in Newark. Let it fail of a good impression on the first performance and the remainder of the engagement would certainly be a dismal failure. Giving the management of "The Light Eternal" due credit for good business judgment, the conclusion must naturally be, that the attraction is one of unusual worth or its stay in this city would be limited to the usual one night stand.

Theatrical Men In New Venture

It has always been said that once in the great fraternity of theatrical men it was impossible to break away, but a party of Newark men who have some time been attached to the Auditorium theatre and connected with other theatrical ventures incorporated a cement company on Friday.

Among the incorporators were E. E. Hout, L. E. Jones who has been electrician with a number of the larger theatrical productions, Clifton Moore, and Bernard Smith who was assistant manager here and managed houses in New Orleans for the Shuberts.

Liebler Company Goes Back to Syndicate

Following Mr. George C. Tyler's departure for Europe in search of theatrical attractions for next season and his announcement on the eve of leaving that his firm had renewed its lease of the Century theatre, it was learned that Mr. Tyler has entered into an agreement with Messrs. Klaw & Erlanger, heads of the theatrical syndicate, whereby all the Liebler & Co. attractions, about twenty in all, and important companies all of them, will hereafter be booked in syndicate theatres. The dramatic critic of the New York Herald for two years Messrs. Liebler & Co., have been allied with the Messrs. Shubert, in opposition to the "syndicate."

John Milton and Louise Dunbar in "The Light Eternal," at the Auditorium Three Days, April 1, 2, 3.

Mr. Marc Klaw confirmed the news but declined to go into details. He said, however, that there never has been a time when the Liebler & Co. attractions could not book in the syndicate houses, and that when the Liebler firm took its attractions elsewhere two years ago feeling on the part of the syndicate was entirely friendly.

Messrs. Daniel V. Arthur and Frederick E. McKay, representing Miss Blanche Ring, recently re-entered the syndicate camp and now the Liebler company going back changes the theatrical complexion of the country to a great extent.

Differences between Mr. Tyler and the Messrs. Shuberts are said to have been brought to a climax over an agreement of the sharing of the profits of "The Blue Bird."

Pink Lady Company Sails for London

Klaw & Erlanger's "Pink Lady" company sailed on March 23d for London, where the musical comedy will open under the direction of Klaw & Erlanger at the Globe theatre in Easter week. This company appeared for almost a year in New York. Its principal members are Hazel Dawn, Frank Ladd, Alvie Dorey, Alice Hegeman, Jack Henderson, Louise Kelley, Fred Wright Jr., Frances Gordon, Clifton Kent and Scott Welsh.

Chorus Girls are Out of Positions

It has been two years since there has been as few musical comedies running in New York as at the present moment and this condition of affairs creates the query "Are we to have fewer musical comedies from now on?" Does this condition arise from the fact that the percentage of failures with musical comedy productions runs about eighty-five per cent or one hundred? It may be that it has much to do to deter a theatrical manager from making productions, but cost from $30,000 to $60,000, with every chance that he will not get his money back. The lack of musical comedies has imposed a hardship on the chorus girl contingent. There are thousands of them out of employment. In the office of Henry B. Harris over five hundred chorus girls have left their names and addresses all of them waiting for a chance for some chorus girl to drop out of "The Quaker Girl," which is the reigning musical success of the season.

Little Anecdotes of Great Actors.

When John McCullough was acting in London he hurried out of his theatre one night to see living's death scene," as Othello. McCullough said nothing until the curtain fell at the end of the play, then he rose slowly in his seat. "Good God," he exclaimed, "if they can stand that they can stand me. I'm going to play Othello." And he did the next week or so houses that applauded him to the echo.

An amusing story is told of Edmund Kean, who one night, played Othello with more than his usual intensity. An admirer, who met him in the street the next day, was loud in his congratulations. I really thought you would choke. I said to Kean, you seemed so tremendously earnest." "In earnest?" said the tragedian. "I should think so. I was trying to keep me out of the focus."

William Warren the famous comedian was renowned for his keenness of wit. He characterized Joseph Jefferson's version of "The Rivals" as Sheridan Twenty Miles Away."

George W. Wilson was rehearsing with Edwin Booth at the Boston Museum. Wilson in one scene, asked the star where he should stand. "Where do you usually stand?" asked Booth. "Mr. Barrett had me over there," answered Wilson. "Yes," used Barrett. I usually have him here," answered the other side of the stage. "Suit yourself," I'll find you wherever you are," said Booth.

Animal Act at Orpheum.

There has come to the theatres of this city on many occasions an act known as the "animal act." This so-brought has meant many things to the theatre goer, good, bad and indifferent, but the act at The Orpheum this week is attracting a great deal of attention on account of its worth.

There are performing bears, dogs, and monkeys, and the only trained ant-enter in captivity. These animals are made to perform all sorts of antics and the act is especially pleasing to the children.

To Mothers—And Others.

You can use Bucklen's Arnica Salve to cure children of eczema, rashes, tetter, chafings, scaly and encrusted humors, as well as their accidental injuries—cuts, burns, bruises, etc., with perfect safety. Nothing else heals so quickly. For boils, ulcers, old, running or fever sores or piles it has no equal. 25c at F. D. Hall's.

MANAGER GRIM SIGNS CLASSY SHORT FIELDER

In a letter to the Advocate from Indianapolis, Manager Jack Grim states that he has signed Errol Williams, a shortstop from Santo Monica, Cal., who is regarded as a high class youngster. Grim says that he thinks Williams will develop into the fastest shortstop in the Ohio State League. He has also signed Frank Kleitovetz, a catcher and first baseman, who comes highly recommended.

Grim states that the Indianapolis team has not been able to get much practice on the diamond, and as a result he has not had an opportunity to look over the prospective talent for the Newark club.

He expects to arrive in Newark April 1 and his players will begin reporting a week later. Williams is ordered to report here April 7.

scenes are laid in the interior of the vestibule train, and the action throughout its three scenes describes a transcontinental journey with stopovers at Omaha, Ogden and Reno, Nevada. Its characters, embrace eloping couples, divorcing couples, drummers, tourists ministers, crooks, highwaymen and the various types that are familiar to everybody who has ever made a journey in a sleeping car. The play was staged by that master craftsman, George Marion, and the company to be seen here embraces a number of names well known to theatre goers throughout the country.

The management of the Auditorium will offer a diversified program of photo-plays tomorrow that should attract large crowds. Five thousand feet of the latest subjects will be offered and the program will run the gamut of human emotions embracing comedy, romance, tragedy, and travel. The afternoon performances will run continuous from 1:30 to 6 and the evening entertainments will start at 6:15 and run until 10:30.

"The Cow and the Moon."

Charles A. Sellen's most recent of musical extravaganzas "The Cow and the Moon," will be seen here at the Auditorium Matinee and Evening, March 25. Mr. Sellen is duplicating former successes as a musical producer. "Happy" Hans and Mike together with the beautiful Genie as principal characters. The other characters include Great Domo, the ruler of the Moon, Tatolent, an operative star, with whom Domo falls in love. Allert, true and fearless, Ross the Cuban, Innocence the maid who never saw a man, Tropolis the wise man of the Rock, Pickelden, the general of the Man in the Moon's army, the Moon demon, and Moon beam, and Molly, the sacred cow together with some 25 other characters of more or less importance but who all help in the action of the piece.

"Mutt and Jeff."

Some what of a revelation to the theatregoers of this city is the announcement of Manager Johnson of the Auditorium theatre, of the engagement of "Mutt and Jeff" at his popular playhouse Tuesday evening, March 26.

This play is a dramatization of the famous cartoons of Bud Fisher of the same name that have been provoking laughter all over the country for several months past. "Mutt and Jeff," it is said is a little bit on the order of "Little Johnny Jones," but on a more gorgeous scale and that from the rise of the curtain to its final fall those who witness the performance will be kept in a continuous uproar.

"Sis Perkins."

There is so much that is good in the rural comedy drama, "Sis Perkins" that no one wonders at the unusual success that has been accorded to the play. Its realistic pictures of country life appeal to all classes for in it is found comedy, pathos, laughter and tears. It is clean and wholesome, its humor is crisp and quaint and its bits of homely philosophy are remembered and laughed at over and over again. "Sis" comes to the Auditorium Saturday March 30, matinee and night.

"The Light Eternal."

Aside from its intense dramatic interest and spectacular features "The Light Eternal," which comes to the Auditorium Monday Tuesday and Wednesday April 1 2 and 3

LET'S CLEAN UP

(Communicated.)
Dirty streets are a disgrace to any city or town. To a stranger nothing can create so favorable or unfavorable impression as the condition of the streets. In these days of progressive enlightenment there is really no legitimate excuse for an unsanitary condition resulting from unclean thoroughfares.
Can we not insist that the sweepers shall traverse our streets oftener than once a month?
We really have a very pretty city with great possibilities but so long as our streets are kept in such a filthy condition, we must not expect strangers to fall in love with our town.
What could be more repulsive to a stranger or visitor in Newark than a walk around the square and the streets leading from it on a Saturday evening and see how the streets and gutters are filled with the refuse from market and the stores?
Such a condition is both offensive and unsanitary and the authorities should take action and see that it ceases to exist.
Excellent work has been done by many of the Women's clubs and juvenile street cleaning leagues all over the country.
In Scranton, Pa., the women decided to beautify their home town and it has become a most attractive place.
Why can not the women of Newark do likewise? We have not a "Waring" in our city, but we have a "Waring" of Trade of whom we expect great things and to whom we will gladly give our assistance.

CITIZEN.

Newark's clean-up day is April 9. Many are now cleaning up their premises. Don't wait for clean-up day but do it now. The streets are to receive promptly the attention they need.

PRAISE FOR EX-NEWARKITE IN WISCONSIN

The following complimentary notice appeared in a late issue of the Bell Telephone News regarding a former Newark man who resided in this city in the late 70's and married Miss Jennie Moriarty, a sister of Daniel Moriarty of Clinton street.
Joseph P. Brennan, construction superintendent of the Wisconsin Telephone Company, came to this country in the year 1879, after completing his studies at St. Kyran's college at Kilkenny, Ireland, his native country.
The purpose of this trip was to visit his uncle and other family relations living at Remington and Logansport, Ind., where he remained until the spring of 1880, at which time his desire to see and mingle among the great tall buildings became too great and so he traveled to Chicago on several occasions, one of which proved the direct cause of him becoming deeply interested in the telephone business. He had read at length of this new toy, but up to this time had not seen any construction work and the sight of a crew of men stringing wires from house-tops, regardless of streets, alleys, and any direct plan, is what attracted his attention. This work was being done in what is now known as the "loop" district in Chicago.
After taking some time to consider carefully what line of work he should take up, he concluded that the development of the telephone business had as good a future as the other lines of work in mind, and so he determined to become a lineman, but before making his application for a position he was offered a position with an engineering corps which was making a survey for a new railroad known at that time as the Chicago-Indianapolis Air Line railroad and now a part of the Lackawanna and Western Railroad. After the railroad had been surveyed, the crew was dispensed with and he returned immediately to Logansport, in November, 1880, where he found his opportunity to get into the telephone business, as the Central Telephone Co. had under way at that time the construction of an exchange.
After digging postholes two weeks he was appointed to the position of head groundman, which meant, according to his statement, that he was to dig two holes while the other fellows were digging one. From the position of groundman he progressed rapidly in the work and after leaving Logansport he immediately went to Chicago and succeeded in getting a job with the Chicago Telephone Company as a lineman. In January he was sent to Quincy, Ill., by the Western Telephone Company to repair the exchange which had been wrecked by a cyclone, and from there he visited many cities throughout the central states reconstructing central offices and outside plants.
This was only the beginning of Mr. Brennan's career as he was made head lineman, wire chief and manager of some of the larger exchanges and was finally offered the position as wire chief for the Chicago Telephone Company at Chicago, but declined and accepted a position as manager for the Central Union at Toledo, Ohio, and in 1897 was promoted to the position as state foreman for the Ohio division of the Central Union Telephone Company. He has occupied important positions in the territory of the Central Union Telephone Company, under Messrs. D. F. Lloyd, George Bush, and E. A. Reed until 1906, when he was transferred to the position of superintendent of construction for the Wisconsin Telephone Company.
On March 1, 1912 he assumed the position of construction superintendent for the Wisconsin division of the Central group of the five telephone companies working directly under the supervision of the general construction superintendent at Chicago. All who know him are pleased to hear of this promotion, as his experience in the field together with his personality go hand in hand to make up the kind of a man who is destined to make good in any line of work.

SOUND SLEEP FOR NERVE WRECKED PEOPLE

That old devil, insomnia, is the greatest booking agent on earth. The result of his never ending labor is so great that it requires thousands of sanitariums and hundreds of insane asylums to take care of his bookings.
The overflow he sends to prisons, jails, workhouses and grave yards.
Of course, he has some help: his chief aids are morphine, bromides and coal tar products.
Morse's Glycerole is a pure vegetable nerve tonic that will force old insomnia to cut your acquaintance in short order. The formula is on every label.
It is such a safe and harmless nerve tonic that thousands of physicians prescribe it for teething infants—mothers should remember this.

FARMERS' SPECIAL TO REACH NEWARK WEDNESDAY MAR. 27

Will Arrive on B. & O. at 8:45 A. M. And Remain One Hour—Fine Lectures Promised.

A farmers' special train will be run over the lines of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad in southeastern Ohio for five days this month, Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday, March 26, 27th, 28th, 29th and 30th. Lectures on better farming conditions, fruit raising, corn culture, poultry husbandry and the improvements of all farm crops—will be delivered on the train by authorities from the College of Agriculture of Ohio State University. The speakers will include Professor Wendell Paddock, V. G. Davis, J. H. Gourley, C. J. Grant, W. H. Darst, and A. B. Graham. A feature of the meetings will be the lectures on elementary agriculture for boys and girls who have reached the sixth grade of primary school education. Southeastern Ohio through which the train will be operated is widely known as an important fruit and corn producing section of the state, and it is the aim of the railroad and the university, through their co-operation with the farmers to provide the means of further development of the farming communities by placing the farmers in touch with advanced methods that yield the largest returns.

W. W. Wood, general industrial agent of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad will be in charge of the train for his line. Prof. A. B. Graham will have charge of the lectures which will be delivered under the auspices of the State University. George H. Campbell, assistant to President Willard of the B. & O. will accompany the train.
The schedule provides for a number of stops daily, with night meetings at Chillicothe, Zanesville, McConnellsville, Marietta, and Athens. The campaign of agricultural education will be begun at Belmont, continuing west to Zanesville, thence over the Ohio and Little Kanawha line to Marietta. From Marietta the train will traverse the main line of the Baltimore & Ohio Southwestern to Chillicothe, reaching Newark at 8:45 a. m. and remaining one hour Wednesday March 27th.

EVERYONE NEEDS IT

Erman & Son Are Having a Wonderful Sale of Thompson's Barosma, the Mighty Kidney and Liver Specific.

And no wonder, when he offers to refund your money if it doesn't cure any disease of the kidneys, liver or bladder, backache, headache, nervousness or any weakness of the kidneys.

But Thompson's Barosma has made so many almost miraculous cures that Erman & Son are pretty certain not to have any returns.

Here are a few instances:
Frank K. Sturges, Sturtevant, Crawford county, Pa. was cured of Bright's disease six years ago, and took only six bottles. He has had no bad symptoms since.

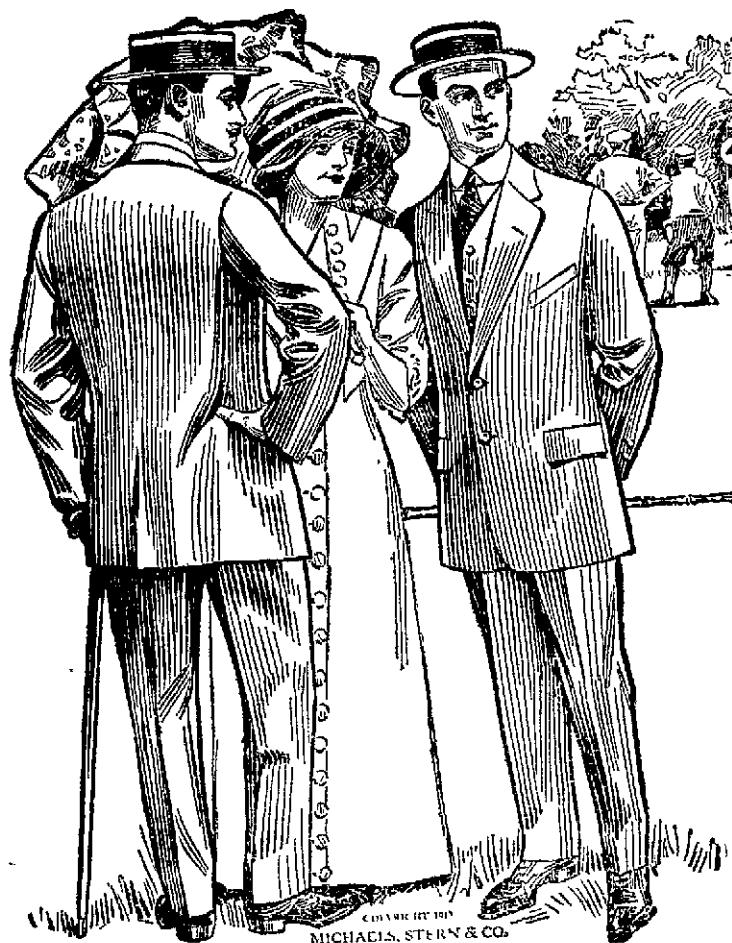

"I had kidney trouble and enlargement of the liver and spleen. I took Thompson's Barosma. The first bottle reduced the measurement around my stomach from 45 to 36 inches, and several bottles completely cured me."—M. S. Langworthy, Tryonville, Pa.

After suffering the terrible agony of rheumatism for ten years, being compelled to use crutches, J. N. Dunn, Troy Center, Pa., after all hope had left him and he had no faith in any remedy, took six bottles of Thompson's Barosma, threw away his crutches and went to work for the first time in ten years.

These statements are absolutely true, and the Thompson Medical Co., Titusville, Pa., will prove it. Then why should anyone suffer in the face of such facts? How can they suffer when Erman & Son guarantee to refund the money if a cure is not effected. Thompson's Barosma, 50 cents and $1.00 a bottle. All druggists.

Mr. F. H. In speaking of a change from lack of sufficient apples even for home consumption in Washington county, Ohio, to a crop of 100,000 bushels two years ago, the Fruit Grower says: "This change was brought about by F. H. Ballou being sent by the Ohio Agricultural Experiment Station down there to induce a man not to cut down an old Rome Beauty apple orchard, but let him demonstrate what proper spraying would do."

No Man is Stronger Than His Stomach

A strong man is strong all over. No man can be strong who is suffering from weak stomach with its consequent indigestion, or from some other disease of the stomach and its associated organs, which impairs digestion and nutrition. For when the stomach is weak or diseased there is a loss of the nutrition contained in food, which is the source of all physical strength. When a man "doesn't feel just right," when he doesn't sleep well, has an uncomfortable feeling in the stomach after eating, is languid, nervous, irritable and despondent, he is losing the nutrition needed to make strength.

Such a man should use Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. It enriches the blood, invigorates the liver, strengthens the kidneys, nourishes the nerves, and so GIVES HEALTH AND STRENGTH TO THE WHOLE BODY.

You can't afford to accept a secret nostrum as a substitute for this non-alcoholic medicine of known composition, not even though the dealer may thereby make a little bigger profit. Ingredients printed on wrapper.

FIRST THINGS

The first treaty of commerce between the United States and Japan was concluded 58 years ago today by Commodore Perry, who had been sent there for that purpose. The first American expedition had reached Yeddo about nine months before and at that time the Nippon government seemed inclined to continue its policy of exclusion of the "foreign" derails. The boldness and determination of Commodore Perry finally won out, however, and the treaty was signed which marked the first step in the great progress of Japan, which has been the marvel of the nineteenth and twentieth centuries.

MERCHANTS TO FIGHT SUITS

The merchants of East Newark have organized to protect themselves against suits brought before a local justice of the peace and have retained Attorney A. S. Mitchell, Wayne Collier and Messrs. Fitzgibbon and Montgomery to defend them.

The actions before the justices were based on attachments brought in by Wheeling W. Van, whereby wages of several B and O employees were tied up. The merchants claim there was an agent of a Wheeling mercantile firm who purchased their claims and relinquished all right and control over them and are not liable in any way. Since the actions have been commenced against the store keepers other merchants have refused credit to the B and O men commencing suit and it looks as if as a result of it is a fight. Newark will soon be a credit town no longer.

LABOR NEWS

Every delegate should remember the regular meeting of Newark Trades Assembly tomorrow Sunday, March 24 at 9 o'clock in a business of importance will be brought forward and it will interest you.

The last meeting was very interesting to all present. The roll call showed a very large attendance of delegates and all officers present, except Guard Hollar. The journal of the last meeting was approved.

Brother Wm. Lang, representing the Plumbers union, No. 272, was obligated by the president and later on he was elected and installed as guard, filling a vacancy. Chairman Brother Bingham of the legislative committee, made a very satisfactory report. Also Brother Morgan, delegate to the Board of Trade, made a good report. Both reports were received and filed. Brother Charles Edmunds reported he had been elected to represent the Plumber Union in the Board of Trade.

Many communications were read and referred to the proper committees. Tip Top bread, manufactured by Mr. John Flannigan, was declared to be not unfair, reports to the contrary notwithstanding. Certain parties have reported that Tip Top bread was unfair. The Assembly has been investigating the matter thoroughly and they say it is just as fair as any made in the city.

The conditions of passenger service, the prompt dispatch of trains and other matters of a general nature which will attend to advance excellence of service as well as prevent any infraction of train rules that may come to their attention.

W. W. Eggleston, former chief train dispatcher of Baltimore, and F. Judge, who formerly filled the same position at Grafton, have been appointed to the positions. The supervisors of transportation will spend a great deal of their time traveling on the trains of the B. and O. and will give trainmen and other railroad employees the benefit of suggestions tending to raise the standard of service.

Having filled the responsible positions of train dispatchers, the supervisors are well informed as to train movement over the road with as little delay as possible. The appointments are effective at once.

"The Car That Has Bridged the Gap Between the $1500 Price and the $4000 Quality"

The Self-Starting Everitt "4-36"

If you are acquainted with automobile values you probably realize that for some time there have been two great classes of motor cars. One was the $1500 type, representing reasonable price; the other the $4000 class, representing highest quality.

Up to the present it has been next to impossible to find an automobile combining the lasting qualities of the one, with the attractive economy of the other. Regardless of all the claims that have been made, there has always been a marked difference between cars made to "sell" and cars built to use.

About two years ago, three well-known manufacturers united their experience, capital and facilities in the effort to embody the essentials of the best in a car of sensible price. It was apparent that such a thing was possible; the strange thing was that no one had ever accomplished it.

Investigation showed that the design and engineering features of the finest cost but little more than the ordinary; that automatic machinery would produce mechanically perfect "parts" at moderate expense; that perfect assembly, testing and inspection was simply a matter of thoroughness, system and good mechanics; and that the best of equipment could be bought reasonably in the open market. The one great difference, therefore, between the two types, resolved itself down to a question of materials.

During the last few years, American steel-makers have specialized on automobile steels. Materials which until recently were imported at great expense can now be bought here in any quantity. Demand has brought about supply, and now the price difference between high and low grade automobile steels, when spread over a production of four or five thousand cars, is not excessive.

So far as known, there is but one car selling at less than $4000 which is built throughout from the very finest steel—namely "Chrome-Nickel"—and that one car is the Everitt. As any mechanical engineer can tell you, this material is about three times stronger than ordinary steels, and, in an automobile is practically unbreakable and unwearable.

The use of Chrome-Nickel and similar fine materials in the Everitt is possible only through scientific management, a low overhead expense, simplicity in mechanical design and the perfection of the factory's equipment of automatic machinery. It is said that no other factory in the country can afford the materials that go into the Everitt.

But in this splendid car, the buyer gets the very best that science knows; he gets a self starting car; he gets a big car, with big wheels and tires and demountable rims; and he gets a full equipment—with nothing more to buy—at the one price of $1500. You begin to see for yourself the extraordinary value of the Everitt. Your own test will show that its ability and performance rank it in a class by itself.

LITTLE INTEREST TAKEN BY WOMEN IN SUFFRAGE

NEWARK LADIES EVIDENTLY DO NOT CARE MUCH ABOUT POLITICS NOW.

Only 44 have expressed themselves in favor and 18 in opposition to equal suffrage.

To be sure, Newark has many advocates of equal suffrage and many who oppose the suggestion to give the right of franchise to women. The advocates and opponents are to be found both among men and women, but all must agree that to date the average Newark woman doesn't care whether she is allowed to vote or not. Few have any interest in politics, though the number is growing.

A few days ago the Advocate published an announcement of a coupon attached inviting the women readers to say whether or not they favored equal suffrage. Announcement was made that no names would be published but that each coupon must be signed both as evidence of good faith and to prevent one from voting more than once. At the same time this newspaper has published a number of articles giving the arguments of those favoring equal suffrage and has published a report of the recent public address given here upon the topic.

One would naturally feel that this publicity would arouse some interest in the matter and that there would be a flood of ballots. The coupon has been printed every day for six days and consequently nearly 32,400 coupons have been published and circulated. The matter has been brought to the direct attention of the women of Newark and Licking county for six consecutive days and has been printed in conspicuous form.

And yet only 62 replies have been received. Only 62 women have manifested an interest in the matter. Of this number 44 have expressed themselves in favor of equal suffrage while 18 have declared against it and have gone on record as being willing to let the men do the voting. Out of the 62 votes cast 21 are sent in from Granville, Utica, Johnstown, Alexandria, St. Louisville or R. F. D. Routes. In Newark city just 42 votes were cast.

It is very evident that Newark women as a whole are decidedly indifferent whether the men let them vote or not. The Ohio Constitutional convention has put the question up to the men voters of the state and the women voters of the state and the men voters of the state and the women voters of the state shall be allowed to vote at all elections. They are now privileged to vote at school elections only.

"THE DEVIL," SUBJECT OF FINE SERMON
Delivered by Colored Evangelist, Dr. J. G. Robinson, at A. M. E. Church Last Night.

A large congregation of both white and colored people turned out to Trinity A. M. E. church last night to hear Dr. J. G. Robinson. The evangelist used for his subject, "The Devil." At times his congregation was laughing—at other times many were weeping and others were demonstrating their approval of his remarks by saying "Amen," "Glory to God," etc. Dr. Robinson said in part:

"There is a great deal of ignorance concerning the devil. We can learn much about him only by prayerful study of the Bible. There are several theories about the devil. One that he is a myth, one that he is a ghost, one that he is a visionary being, and still another, that there is no devil. But I want to tell you that the devil is as real as sin, as real as life, and as personal as God. Three hundred times he is mentioned in the Bible. Pick up the morning paper and the record of a day is the story of the existence of the devil. Murders, suicides, assassinations, lynchings, thefts, bribery, hold-ups, strikes, divorces, drunkenness and debauchery of all kinds—all go to show that there is a devil, and that he is at work. But, thank God, there is a Christ, and John says the Christ was manifest that he might destroy the works of the devil. Christians are followers of Christ, and as such should help destroy the works of the devil. But an old drunken slob, an old ballroom slouch and an old malice-holding hypocrite can't destroy the works of the devil—they belong to the devil. There is a class of people who say they can't resist the devil. I am sick and tired of this measly, slimy set. Any man who will pray can resist the devil. Any many plus God can conquer the devil.

A woman once told me that her son was a good boy, but that he was overcome by whisky. I told her she was mistaken—that the whisky was 'overcome' by her boy. For I have never seen a whisky bottle chasing a man in my life.

The trouble with the church is, nine-tenths of the people are describing Mars and Venus, talking about science and logic in their sermons, and the devil is going right on, taking people to hell. To defeat the devil, we must get back to first principles in Christianity. Back to Christian homes—yes, you remember the old-time mother, the Christian father. We must rebuild the family altars and rekindle on them the old songs, the Bible readings, and around the hearthstone lead in prayer. The devil in Eden got in a serpent. I believe the Bible. If it said he got in a cow, I would have believed it. I know he gets in a mule. He will get in a woman. Jesus found one woman that had seven devils in her. I have seen women that had seventeen devils in them, and then some more. Ah! When the devil gets in a woman he has a worker. A devilish, mean woman is the meanest thing this side of hell, but O my God, men, a pure Christian woman is the brightest gem in God's universe. Women, get Jesus with you and you can change this old world for Christ. The devil

TO BREAK UP COLD
Some Advice That Will Save Time and Money.
Strong drink and quinine may relieve a cold, but it usually does more harm than good.
To break up a hard cold in either head or chest, thousands are using this sensible treatment.
First of all look after your bowels; if they need attention use any reliable cathartic. Then pour a bowl teapoonful of HYOMEI over the head and of boiling water, cover the head and bowl with a towel and breathe for 5 or 10 minutes the pleasant, soothing, healing vapor.
Do this just before going to bed; your head will feel fine and clear, and you'll wake from a refreshing sleep minus a cold in the morning.
For colds, coughs, catarrh, asthma and croup HYOMEI is guaranteed. A fifty cent bottle is all you need to break up a cold and this can be obtained at Evans' drug store and druggists' everywhere.

NO HEARTBURN DYSPEPSIA OR SICK STOMACH

Every family here ought to keep some Diapepsin in the house, as any one of you may have an attack of indigestion or stomach trouble at any time, day or night.

This harmless preparation will digest anything you eat and overcome a distressed, out-of-order stomach five minutes afterwards.

If your meals don't tempt you, or what little you do eat seems to fill you, or lays like a lump of lead in your stomach, or if you have heartburn, that is a sign of indigestion.

Ask your pharmacist for a 50-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin and take a little just as soon as you can. There will be no sour risings, no belching of undigested food, mixed with acid, no stomach gas or heartburn, fullness or heavy feeling in the stomach, nausea, debilitating headaches, dizziness or intestinal griping. This will all go, and, besides, there will be no sour food left over in the stomach to poison your breath with nauseous odors.

Pape's Diapepsin is a certain cure for out-of-order stomachs, because it prevents fermentation and takes hold of your food and digests it just the same as if your stomach wasn't there.

Relief in five minutes from all stomach misery is at your drug store waiting for you.

These large 50-cent cases of Pape's Diapepsin contain more than sufficient to cure any case of Dyspepsia, Indigestion or any other Stomach Trouble.
